

University of Exeter

Humanities and Social Sciences
Global China Research Centre
Workshop

Summer 2023

Classical Traditions Across Modern Borders: The Reception of the Graeco-Roman Classics in China

A Workshop with Professor Liu Jinyu

16 May 2023, 12:00–2:00PM (hybrid event*)

Location:

University of Exeter, Streatham Campus, Queen's Building MR2+3

The ExGCRC This workshop will be both in person and available online.

Follow us on Twitter (@ExeterGCRC) or sign up to our mailing list for updates.

*To register on Zoom, click here.

Liu Jinyu is a professor of classical studies at DePauw University. Professor Liu's research interests include interdisciplinary approaches to understanding the Roman Empire and the translating of classical texts in a global context. Having completed her Ph.D. in Roman History at Columbia University in 2004, Professor Liu is an established scholar whose publications include research monographs, chapters in edited volumes, and other academic texts in both English and Chinese. Most recently, her Ovid in China: Reception, Translation, and Comparison, co-edited with Thomas J. Sienkewicz, was published by Brill in 2022.

Crucially, Professor Liu actively encourages scholars from around the world to pursue cutting-edge research on diverse aspects of the ancient world. Join us for a discussion of the reception of the Graeco-Roman classics in China and more.

Workshop Convenors:

Ms Jingjing Cao

Mr Wang Xiao

GCRC:

Dr Yue Zhuang (Director)

Dr T. C. Burnham (Assistant Director)

This seminar is made possible by the University of Exeter's HASS Global Fund.