

Centre for Translating Cultures 10th Year Anniversary Seminar

Breaking Boundaries: Translating Cultures and the Relevance of Museum Ethnography Now

Tony Eccles

Curator of Ethnography
Royal Albert Memorial Museum

The late Blackfoot elder Frank Weasel Head viewing Chief Crowfoot's regalia for the first time, 2013

Museums are under considerable pressure to make ethnography collections relevant. They're also expected to address British colonial history and the resulting injustices. How is heritage and history being translated for the museum visitor?
